FALL 2018

Plan to quit.

Every November, the Great American Smokeout asks everyone to quit smoking. You can quit for just that one day. Or it could be the first day of a permanent, healthy change.

There is no way to safely use tobacco. Make a plan to quit on November 15. Ask your provider for help quitting. Or call 1-866-784-8454 or visit quitnow.net to learn more.

Heart-healthy eating.

Choose foods that help your heart.

Making good food choices can be hard. But you don't have to give up all your favorite foods at once. Start by adding healthier foods to your diet. Then take out foods that could lead to heart disease.

Remember these tips when you shop for food:

- Healthy foods don't have a lot of sugar, fat or salt. Cut back on salty snacks and sugary soft drinks.
- Add colorful fruits and vegetables to your meals.
- Select lean meats and chicken. And eat smaller amounts than you usually do.
- Avocados, almonds and hazelnuts have a healthy type of fat that can protect your heart.
- Choose whole-grain breads and pasta instead of white.

Grow up strong.

It's important to have well-child visits with your child's primary care provider (PCP) on time. These visits may also be called checkups or Early and Periodic Screening, Diagnostic and Treatment (EPSDT) visits. Take your baby for well-child visits at the following ages:

- 3 to 5 days.
- 1 month.
- 2 months.
- 4 months.
- 6 months.
- 9 months.
- 12 months.
- 15 months.
- 18 months.
- 24 months.

Then, take your child or teen to his or her PCP every year. At well-child visits, your child's PCP will make sure your child is growing and developing well. Your child will get any tests and vaccines he or she is due for. The PCP will answer your questions about your child's health.

Baby basics.

What to expect at your postpartum checkup.

The first weeks after you have a baby can seem like a haze of sleepless nights, diaper changes and pediatrician visits. It's easy for a new mom to neglect her own health. But it's very important to see your doctor or midwife 6 weeks after you give birth. Here's what to expect at your postpartum checkup.

At the postpartum checkup, your doctor or midwife will:

- Check to make sure you are healing well from childbirth. If you had an episiotomy or cesarean section, your incision will be looked at.
- Screen you for postpartum depression.
- Do a pelvic exam to make sure your reproductive organs are returning to your pre-pregnancy state.
- Let you know if you are ready to start having sex again. This is a good time to talk about birth control options. You should leave this visit knowing what you will do for family planning.
- Answer questions about breast-feeding and examine your breasts.

Just had a baby? See your doctor or midwife for a 6-week postpartum checkup. If you take your baby to the checkup, bring an adult to help watch the baby.

Sleep well.

Sleep is very important for babies, children and teens. When kids don't get enough sleep, it can affect their health and behavior. A bedtime routine can help kids get enough sleep at any age. Try these tips:

- Stick to a bedtime each night. Remind kids bedtime is coming at least once ahead of time.
- Have a consistent bedtime routine. Include quiet time well before bed in the routine.
- Help older kids and teens stick to a bedtime. Make rules about electronic devices at night.

Ask Dr. Health E. Hound.®

Q: How can I tell if my child is a healthy weight?

A: Ask the doctor to check your child's body mass index (BMI) every year. BMI is calculated using your child's height and weight. The doctor can also tell you your child's BMI-for-age percentile. This number shows how your child compares to other children of his or her age and sex. These numbers tell you if your child's weight is healthy.

Looking at BMI each year tells you if your child is at risk for obesity. Because your child is growing quickly, a single reading doesn't give a complete picture. A good BMI over time can lead to long-term health and a healthy weight as an adult.

Eating well can help your child stay at a healthy weight. This means eating a diet with lots of fruits and vegetables, and limiting sweets. Regular exercise is important, too. Your doctor can give you advice on how to eat well and make sure your child is getting enough exercise.

Teen time.

Checkups are important in adolescence.

Checkups help keep kids healthy at any age. Even preteens and teenagers should see the doctor for a well visit each year. These visits make sure your child is maturing well. Your child's body mass index (BMI) will be measured. BMI uses height and weight to see if your child weighs too much or too little.

The doctor and your child can discuss risky behaviors. These include substance use and safety. Sexual health will also be discussed. Plus, your child will get any shots or tests he or she needs.

When the preteen years start, it's time for another round of shots. Tdap, HPV and meningococcal vaccines are recommended for most 11- to 12-year-olds. In addition, teens need a booster of the meningococcal vaccine at age 16.

Get guidance. Preventive guidelines for your whole family are available. This document says what tests and shots are needed and when. Visit myuhc.com/CommunityPlan or call Member Services at the number on the back of your ID card to get a copy.
